Sound–spelling anchors

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Spanish spelling often follows clear patterns. Learn the five vowel sounds, word stress, and common letter sounds. A perfect accent can wait.

PRODUCE

Keep a, e, i, o, u short and clear. · Stress the marked syllable when an accent appears.

RECOGNIZE

h is silent; j is a strong breathy sound. · Between vowels, a tap r and a trill rr can distinguish words; word-initial r is also trilled.

PATTERNS: a-e-i-o-u · que/qui · gue/gui · pero/perro
TRAP: Do not import English vowel glides. Spanish e and o stay relatively pure.

Bogotá

Bogotá · The written accent marks final stress.

pero, perro

but / dog · Single r versus rolled rr.

Quiero café.

I want coffee.

Core sentence shape and subject omission

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

A useful first pattern is subject + verb + the rest. Spanish often leaves out the subject word when the situation and verb already make it clear.

PRODUCE

Build short sentences with one verb that matches the person. · Drop yo when the speaker is already obvious.

RECOGNIZE

Word order can move for emphasis. · A missing subject is normal, not incomplete.

PATTERNS: (Yo) trabajo en Bogotá. · (Nosotros) hablamos español.
TRAP: Repeating yo in every sentence is grammatical but can sound unnecessarily heavy.

Trabajo con el equipo local.

I work with the local team.

El equipo prepara el informe.

The team prepares the report.

Noun gender, number, and articles

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Learn each noun with el, la, un, or una. These small words, and nearby describing words, show its grammar group and whether there is one or more than one.

PRODUCE

Store nouns as chunks: el informe, la reunión. · Use los/las and plural -s or -es.

RECOGNIZE

Some common nouns break the -o/-a tendency. · Gender is grammatical and does not always describe a person.

PATTERNS: el / la · un / una · los / las · -s / -es
TRAP: Do not guess gender only from the last letter; learn the article with the noun.

Necesito un informe claro.

I need a clear report.

Las reuniones son cortas.

The meetings are short.

el día, la mano

the day / the hand · Two useful exceptions.

Ser and estar: identity versus state/location

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Use ser for what someone or something is. Use estar for where it is or how it is now.

PRODUCE

Use soy/es/son to say what someone or something is. · Use estoy/está/están for place and current state.

RECOGNIZE

Some adjectives change nuance with ser versus estar. · Events often use ser for location: La reunión es en la sala dos.

PATTERNS: soy / eres / es · estoy / está / están

TRAP: The shortcut permanent versus temporary fails often; think identity/classification versus state/location.

Soy responsable de finanzas.

I am responsible for finance.

La oficina está en Bogotá.

The office is in Bogotá.

El informe está listo.

The report is ready.

Hay and tener

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Use hay to say that something is there. Use tener to say who has something. Spanish also uses tener for hunger and available time.

PRODUCE

Use hay unchanged with singular and plural nouns. · Use tengo/tiene/tenemos for possession and common tener expressions.

RECOGNIZE

Hay comes from haber, but its present form does not change for number. · Spanish says tener hambre, not estar hambre.

PATTERNS: Hay + noun. · Tengo + noun. · Tenemos que + infinitive.

TRAP: Do not pluralize hay in the present: use hay dos problemas, not han dos problemas.

Hay una reunión a las nueve.

There is a meeting at nine.

Tenemos dos opciones.

We have two options.

Tengo que revisar el presupuesto.

I have to review the budget.

Present tense: regular verbs

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Remove -ar, -er, or -ir and add an ending for the person. Start with yo, usted/él/ella, and nosotros because you can use them often at work.

PRODUCE

Use the present for habits, facts now, and plans coming soon. · Retrieve high-frequency forms as whole words, not by reciting a full table.

RECOGNIZE

Tú and plural forms even if you do not yet produce all of them. · The subject is often encoded in the ending.

PATTERNS: hablo / habla / hablamos · como / come / comemos · vivo / vive / vivimos
TRAP: Do not attach an English -s rule to Spanish verbs; each person has its own ending.

Reviso los números cada mañana.

I review the numbers every morning.

Usted trabaja con ventas.

You work with sales.

Vivimos cerca de la oficina.

We live near the office.

High-value irregular verbs and verb chunks

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Learn a few common verb forms as ready-made pieces: ir, querer, poder, hacer, decir, venir, and saber.

PRODUCE

Use quiero, puedo, voy, hago, digo, vengo, and sé as ready-made chunks. · Add an infinitive after querer, poder, and ir a.

RECOGNIZE

Common third-person and nosotros forms. · Stem changes such as quiere and puede.

PATTERNS: Quiero + infinitive. · Puedo + infinitive. · Voy a + infinitive.

TRAP: After a conjugated modal-style verb, keep the next verb in the infinitive: puedo hablar.

Quiero entender el mercado.

I want to understand the market.

¿Puede repetir, por favor?

Can you repeat, please?

Voy a llamar al proveedor.

I am going to call the supplier.

Negation and useful questions

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Put no directly before the main verb. A Spanish question often keeps normal word order, or starts with a question word such as qué or dónde.

PRODUCE

Make a statement negative with no + verb. · Ask with qué, quién, cuándo, dónde, cómo, cuánto, and por qué.

RECOGNIZE

Question marks open and close: ¿...? · Qué and que differ in writing and function.

PATTERNS: No + verb. · ¿Question word + verb + **...?

TRAP: Do not insert do/does. Spanish questions do not need an auxiliary equivalent.

No entiendo esta parte.

I do not understand this part.

¿Cuándo necesita el informe?

When do you need the report?

¿Cómo se dice cash flow en español?

How do you say cash flow in Spanish?

Adjective agreement and position

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

A describing word usually comes after the noun. Its ending often changes to match the noun: its grammar group and one or more than one.

PRODUCE

Match simple -o/-a/-os/-as adjectives. · Keep many -e adjectives unchanged for gender.

RECOGNIZE

Adjectives may move before a noun for emphasis or convention. · Some adjectives have shortened forms, such as buen before a masculine singular noun.

PATTERNS: informe claro · decisión clara · clientes importantes
TRAP: Agreement follows the noun being described, not the speaker.

Es una decisión importante.

It is an important decision.

Necesitamos datos correctos.

We need correct data.

Es un buen resultado.

It is a good result.

Object pronouns: understand first, produce a small set

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Words such as lo, la, me, and le can replace a person or thing we already know. Start with a few useful whole sentences. Notice the other forms when you meet them.

PRODUCE

Use lo/la for a known singular thing in simple sentences. · Use me and le in memorized, useful chunks.

RECOGNIZE

me, te, lo, la, le, nos, los, las, and les before a conjugated verb. · Le/les often marks a recipient or person affected.

PATTERNS: Lo reviso. · Le envío el archivo. · ¿Me ayuda?

TRAP: Do not force English pronoun order onto Spanish; learn short whole-sentence patterns first.

Lo reviso esta tarde.

I will review it this afternoon.

Le envío el informe a Laura.

I send the report to Laura.

¿Me puede ayudar?

Can you help me?

Gustar and preference

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Use gusta for one liked thing or an action. Use gustan for several liked things. Me, te, le, nos, or les shows who likes them.

PRODUCE

Use me gusta + singular noun or infinitive. · Use me gustan + plural noun. · Use prefiero for a more English-like preference pattern.

RECOGNIZE

A + person can clarify le or les. · Other verbs can follow the same pattern, such as interesar.

PATTERNS: Me gusta + noun/infinitive. · Me gustan + plural. · Prefiero + noun.
TRAP: Do not say me gusto for I like it; that usually means I like myself.

Me gusta caminar por Bogotá.

I like walking around Bogotá.

Me gustan las conversaciones directas.

I like direct conversations.

Prefiero una reunión corta.

I prefer a short meeting.

Time, direction, por/para, and past recognition

先听例句，再用一句自己的业务/日常内容重建同一结构。

Learn a few common patterns for time and movement now. At first, only learn to notice most past forms. Keep using the present and ir a for future plans.

PRODUCE

Tell time and schedule an action. · Use a, de, en, por, and para in memorized high-frequency chunks. · Use ir a + infinitive for a planned future.

RECOGNIZE

Common past forms such as fue, tuvo, hizo, habló, and llegó. · Por often signals route/cause/exchange; para often signals purpose/destination/deadline.

PATTERNS: a las nueve · para el viernes · por correo · Voy a + infinitive.

TRAP: Do not try to master every por/para rule in week one; secure useful chunks and notice patterns in reading.

La reunión es a las diez.

The meeting is at ten.

El informe es para el viernes.

The report is due Friday.

Ayer llegó el cliente.

The client arrived yesterday. · Recognize this past form; do not drill a full past-tense table yet.

A fictional finance team investigates a small discrepancy, checks its source, updates the report, and confirms the amount and date before communicating.

Es martes y el equipo prepara el cierre mensual. Natalia revisa las ventas, Andrés confirma los pagos y yo comparo el presupuesto con los resultados. Los datos generales son correctos, pero hay una diferencia pequeña en una cuenta.

No buscamos una respuesta rápida sin evidencia. Primero preguntamos qué pasó y de dónde sale ese dato. Andrés encuentra un archivo nuevo. Me lo envía y lo reviso con Natalia. La diferencia no es un error de venta; es un pago registrado en otra fecha.

Actualizamos el informe y escribimos una explicación corta. Antes de la reunión, pregunto: «Entonces, ¿el monto y la fecha están confirmados?». Natalia responde que sí y muestra la fuente. Ahora el mensaje para la dirección es simple y preciso.

Una conversación sobre América Latina · 段落 1/1

点段落 → 用手指跟文本 → 暂停复述一句 → 不看文本说大意。

In a fictional planning exercise, a cross-functional team compares two budget options, checks assumptions, and chooses a small evidence-led test.

En esta práctica ficticia, el equipo de una empresa de productos electrónicos prepara un plan financiero para varios mercados de América Latina. La conversación empieza con tres preguntas: ¿Qué necesita cada mercado? ¿Qué riesgos podemos controlar? ¿Qué información todavía falta?

Camila explica que las ventas crecen, pero los costos de distribución también cambian. Jorge presenta dos opciones de presupuesto. La primera permite una campaña grande; la segunda conserva más efectivo para los próximos meses. Yo no elijo de inmediato. Quiero entender los supuestos y escuchar al equipo comercial.

Pregunto: «¿Qué resultado esperamos de la campaña? ¿Cuándo recibimos los datos nuevos? ¿Cómo cambia el flujo de caja?». Después de revisar las respuestas, proponemos una prueba pequeña en una ciudad. El equipo va a medir las ventas, el margen y el inventario durante cuatro semanas.

La decisión es prudente: aprender primero y ampliar después si la evidencia es positiva.

Liderar con calma y claridad · 段落 1/1

点段落 → 用手指跟文本 → 暂停复述一句 → 不看文本说大意。

A fictional regional team lead structures an uncertain supplier problem, separates confirmed facts from estimates, assigns ownership, and sets conditional next steps.

En un escenario ficticio, coordino un equipo regional en América Latina. El viernes por la mañana recibimos una noticia difícil: un proveedor importante puede entregar tarde. El retraso quizá afecte el inventario de productos en dos mercados.

En la primera reunión hay opiniones diferentes. Ventas quiere comprar más unidades inmediatamente. Operaciones prefiere esperar una confirmación. Finanzas necesita entender el costo, el plazo y el impacto en el efectivo. Mi trabajo no es hablar más que todos; es organizar la conversación y hacer visibles las decisiones.

Divido el problema en tres partes. Primero, el equipo revisa qué información está confirmada y qué información es solo una estimación. Segundo, calculamos dos escenarios: una entrega con una semana de retraso y otra con tres semanas. Tercero, acordamos quién llama al proveedor, quién actualiza las ventas y quién revisa la caja.

Al final no tenemos una respuesta perfecta, pero sí un plan claro. Vamos a revisar los datos el lunes. Si el riesgo aumenta, usamos la opción más conservadora. Si el plazo de entrega mejora, evitamos un gasto innecesario.

Para mí, liderar bien significa escuchar, verificar y explicar una decisión de manera sencilla.

For the first three turns, use Spanish sentences of no more than eight words.
Accept a one-word answer at first, then help me expand it into a complete sentence.

Role-play a respectful adult interaction in Bogotá. Rotate among a café, a building reception desk, a bus question, a supermarket, and a conversation with a new colleague or friend.
Keep details culturally plausible but do not claim that one custom represents every Colombian.
Make me ask for one item, clarify one detail, and close the interaction politely.
If voice mode is available, ask me to repeat one short Colombian-friendly phrase for rhythm.

Give only two numbers per turn. Make me confirm important numbers and distinguish confirmed facts from estimates.

Present no more than three pairs in one round. If voice mode can hear me, identify the specific contrast to retry; do not give a global accent score.
If voice mode cannot assess audio reliably, give a recording-and-self-check protocol instead of pretending you heard me.

Show four to six examples without stating the rule. Ask me to group, compare, and propose the smallest rule that explains the data.
